

You Are Cordially Invited to the Symposium Launch of

Our future: A Lancet Commission on adolescent health and wellbeing

THE LANCET

HOSTED BY

University College London
London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine

WHEN

Tuesday, 10 May 2016

09:00-17:00 GMT, Reception to follow

WHERE

University College London

Kennedy Lecture Theatre, 30 Guilford St. London WC1N 1 EH

Please register your attendance here.
<http://bit.ly/lancetadolescent>

Presenters and speakers include:

Carmen Barroso

International Planned Parenthood Federation

Anthony Costello

World Health Organization

Lola Dare

CHESTRAD

Robin Gorna

PMNCH

Richard Horton

The Lancet

George Patton

University of Melbourne

Kikelomo Taiwo

Girls Educational & Mentoring Services

Russell Viner

University College London

Adolescence is a critical time of formative growth to achieve human potential—a fascinating period of profound physical, psychological, and emotional change. It is a life stage marked by both vulnerability and opportunity. As adolescents develop, they reach for engagement beyond their families, and a greater sense of place in the world. The decisions they make, and habits they form, can determine their health and wellbeing for a lifetime. Investments in adolescent health and wellbeing are therefore critical. They are also key to sustainable development.

Our Future: A Lancet Commission on Adolescent Health and Wellbeing report brings together perspectives from public health, economics, political and social science, behavioural science and neuroscience and provides recommendations for action to protect and promote the health, wellbeing and potential of the largest generation in human history.

Copies of the Commission report will be available at the symposium.

Please email lancetadolescent@gmb.com with any questions.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MELBOURNE

 COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK

LONDON
SCHOOL of HYGIENE & TROPICAL MEDICINE

